Håfa Adai!

The University of Guam's The Triton's Call Magazine is seeking qualified individuals for the following services:

Editor-in-Chief

Period: July 6, 2026 – September 30, 2026

The Editor-in-Chief sets the editorial vision and strategic direction of The Triton's Call, upholds standards of journalistic integrity, and serves as the primary representative of the publication to the university community and the broader public. Working closely with the Managing Editor, reporters, and faculty advisor, the Editor-in-Chief is responsible for overseeing content development, guiding editorial decisions, coordinating publication activities, and ensuring that publication goals and deadlines are met. This is a hands-on leadership role requiring strong communication, editorial judgment, and organizational skills.

Compensation:

Total compensation not to exceed $3,750.00 for services rendered during the contract period.

Reporter

Period: August 3, 2026 – September 30, 2026

The Reporter serves as a key contributor to The Triton's Call by researching, interviewing, and writing stories that inform and engage the University of Guam community. The Reporter covers a variety of topics, including campus news, student life, university events, and community issues. Working closely with the Editor-in-Chief and Managing Editor, the Reporter is responsible for developing story ideas, conducting interviews, gathering information, meeting publication deadlines, and producing content that upholds the publication's standards of accuracy, professionalism, and journalistic integrity. This position is open to all UOG students and provides an opportunity to develop writing, communication, and storytelling skills through hands-on experience in student media.

Compensation:

Total compensation not to exceed $2,150.00 for services rendered during the contract period.
